1. This Office Action is in response to applicant's Amendment received on 25 April 2008.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The prior art teaches that translation between natural languages is well known and that it is also well known to adapt translation to other languages such as programming languages. However, the prior art does not suggest that particular source code from a computer program which particularly identifies variables and declarations be interpreted as a natural language for translation to another natural language as further claimed in combination with separators or characters, and comment delimiters which further separate natural language comments from the source code.

Interview Summary

3. A telephone interview was conducted on 28 Apr 2008 which reviewed the language of claim 1 in particular. While there was no particular agreement on allowability, the clarity of the claims was agreed upon. The discussion reviewed in some detail the intended claim language (noted above) that translation of computer languages which might be interpreted as a compiler as identifying particular elements of the computer language that represents a particular natural language in order to improve the readability of resulting translation as it is effectively translated from one natural language to another (i.e. - German to English, Spanish to English, etc.).

The applicant also indicated that Claims 1, 3-5, 7 9 and 10 were amended while claims 2, 6, 8 and 11-14 were canceled in order to clarify a minor typographic error on page 5 of the amendment/REMARKS (3rd paragraph).

4. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue
